Grants are need-based financial aid that also do not require repayment. They are typically awarded based on the student's financial situation and can come from federal, state, or institutional sources.

Financial Need

Financial need is typically determined by the information provided on the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) and other financial documents. Berry College uses this data to assess a student's expected family contribution and award aid accordingly.

Academic Requirements

Many scholarships and some grants require students to maintain a minimum GPA or demonstrate academic excellence during their studies.

Residency and Enrollment

Students must be U.S. citizens or eligible non-citizens and enrolled at least half-time to qualify for most federal and institutional financial aid programs at Berry College.

Application Process for Financial Aid

Applying for Berry College financial aid involves several steps designed to verify eligibility and allocate funds appropriately. Early and accurate submission of required forms is critical to securing aid.

The primary step in applying for financial aid is completing the FAFSA. Berry College's federal school code must be entered to ensure the college receives the application for aid consideration.

Additional Institutional Forms

Berry College may require supplementary forms or documentation, such as the CSS Profile or institutional scholarship applications, to evaluate eligibility for specific awards.

Scholarships Offered by Berry College

Berry College provides a variety of scholarships to attract and support talented students. These scholarships reward academic excellence, leadership, community service, and artistic or athletic abilities.

Students demonstrating exceptional skills in areas like music, athletics, or visual arts may qualify for specialized scholarships tailored to their talents.

Leadership and Service Scholarships

Berry College values community involvement and leadership, offering scholarships to students who have demonstrated outstanding contributions in these areas.

Grants and Federal Aid Programs

In addition to institutional scholarships, Berry College students may qualify for several grants and federal aid programs that provide need-based assistance.

Pell Grants

The Federal Pell Grant is a popular grant program for undergraduate students with significant financial need. It does not require repayment and is awarded based on FAFSA information.

berry college financial aid: Shaping the College Experience Outside the Classroom James J. Scannell, Kathleen Simpson, 1996 Past generations of American students have met the expenses of going to college by pursuing summer jobs and working around twenty hours a week during the academic year; however, such employment is not now so readily available, and with the cost of college tuition increasing, alternative means of funding need to be sought. In an attempt to solve the problem, a number of universities, following the original examples of Cornell, devised programs focusing on the creation of useful and career-related employment opportunities in order to help students pay for a significant portion of their college expenses. This book records the outcome of these programs, evaluating firstly what they accomplished, through relating the experiences of a number of participants, and going on to offer suggestions on setting them up. Of interest to all working in higher education, and especially careers planners and developers, it aims to provide a set of ideas and projects for use with students.
