Common Sleep Disorders Treated

Creekside Sleep Medicine Center addresses a broad spectrum of sleep-related conditions, ranging from common disruptions to rare disorders. Accurate diagnosis of these conditions is crucial for effective management and improved patient outcomes.

Obstructive Sleep Apnea (OSA)

Obstructive Sleep Apnea is one of the most frequently diagnosed sleep disorders at the center. It involves repetitive airway obstruction during sleep, leading to fragmented rest and decreased oxygen levels. Symptoms include loud snoring, daytime fatigue, and morning headaches. The center utilizes comprehensive sleep studies to confirm diagnosis and severity.

Insomnia

Insomnia, characterized by difficulty falling or staying asleep, affects many individuals treated at Creekside Sleep Medicine Center. The center offers behavioral and pharmacological treatments tailored to the underlying causes of insomnia, such as stress, anxiety, or medical conditions.

Restless Legs Syndrome (RLS) and Periodic Limb Movement Disorder (PLMD)

Patients experiencing uncomfortable sensations in the legs and involuntary limb movements during sleep are evaluated for RLS and PLMD. These disorders can severely disrupt sleep quality and are effectively managed through targeted therapies available at the center.

Other Sleep Disorders

The center also diagnoses and treats narcolepsy, circadian rhythm disorders, parasomnias, and hypersomnia. A thorough clinical assessment combined with sleep testing enables precise identification of these conditions.

Diagnostic Procedures and Technologies

Accurate diagnosis at Creekside Sleep Medicine Center relies on advanced diagnostic procedures and technologies designed to monitor sleep patterns and physiological parameters throughout the night.

Polysomnography (Sleep Study)

Polysomnography is the gold standard diagnostic test used to evaluate sleep architecture and identify abnormalities. This overnight test records brain waves, oxygen levels, heart rate, breathing patterns, and limb movements. The center's sleep labs provide a comfortable setting to ensure natural sleep during monitoring.

Home Sleep Apnea Testing (HSAT)

For selected patients, the center offers HSAT, which allows sleep apnea evaluation in the comfort of the patient's home. This portable testing option captures essential data related to breathing and oxygen saturation during sleep.

Multiple Sleep Latency Test (MSLT)

MSLT is utilized to assess excessive daytime sleepiness and diagnose narcolepsy. Conducted during the day, this test measures how quickly a patient falls asleep in a quiet environment.

Actigraphy

Actigraphy involves wearing a wristwatch-like device that tracks movement and sleep-wake cycles over several days or weeks. This technology aids in diagnosing circadian rhythm disorders and evaluating sleep patterns.

Treatment Options Available

Creekside Sleep Medicine Center offers a variety of treatment modalities customized to the specific sleep disorder and patient needs. The center emphasizes evidence-based therapies and ongoing monitoring to optimize treatment outcomes.

Continuous Positive Airway Pressure (CPAP) Therapy

CPAP therapy is the primary treatment for obstructive sleep apnea. It delivers steady air pressure through a mask to keep airways open during sleep. The center provides CPAP titration studies, mask fitting, and patient education to enhance compliance and effectiveness.

Oral Appliance Therapy

For patients with mild to moderate sleep apnea or those intolerant to CPAP, oral appliances are custom-fitted to reposition the jaw and maintain airway patency. The center works with dental specialists to ensure optimal device fit and function.

Behavioral and Cognitive Therapies

Behavioral interventions, including cognitive-behavioral therapy for insomnia (CBT-I), are integral to managing chronic insomnia and other sleep disturbances. These therapies focus on modifying sleep habits and addressing psychological factors impacting sleep quality.

Medication Management

Pharmacological treatments are prescribed when appropriate, with careful consideration of benefits and potential side effects. Medications may target specific symptoms such as excessive daytime sleepiness, restless legs, or insomnia.

Sleep Hygiene Education

Patient education on sleep hygiene is a cornerstone of treatment at Creekside Sleep Medicine Center. Proper sleep environment, consistent sleep schedules, and lifestyle modifications are emphasized to support long-term sleep health.

Patient Care and Support Services

Beyond diagnosis and treatment, Creekside Sleep Medicine Center prioritizes comprehensive patient care and support throughout the treatment journey.
