Overview of Foster Care Population in 2023

The foster care population in 2023 continues to reflect the ongoing demands on child welfare systems nationwide. Nationwide data indicate that approximately 400,000 children were in foster care at some point during the year. This figure includes children removed from their homes due to abuse, neglect, or other family issues. The foster care system aims to provide temporary safe environments while working toward family reunification or permanent alternatives. The average length of stay for children in foster care in 2023 was about 20 months, highlighting the need for timely permanency planning.

National Foster Care Census

According to the most recent census data, the foster care population fluctuates throughout the year due to new entries and exits. The census captures a snapshot of children in care on a specific date, often showing around 300,000 children in care at that time. This number underscores the continual movement within the system, with thousands of children entering or leaving foster care monthly. States vary significantly in their foster care populations, influenced by factors such as population size, reporting practices, and state policies.

Impact of Legislative Changes

Legislative reforms enacted in recent years have influenced foster care numbers. Policies promoting family preservation, kinship care, and expedited permanency have contributed to some reductions in foster care entries. However, the ongoing opioid crisis and economic instability continue to drive higher numbers of children requiring foster care placement in certain regions.

Demographic Trends in Foster Care

Demographic data for foster care in 2023 reveal distinct patterns related to age, race, and gender. These trends offer insight into which populations are most affected and help tailor interventions to meet specific needs. Understanding these demographics is essential for equitable service delivery and addressing disparities within the foster care system.

Age Distribution of Children in Care

The age breakdown of children in foster care shows a concentration in the younger age groups. Children aged between 6 and 15 years constitute the largest segment, accounting for nearly 50% of the foster care population. Infants and toddlers also represent a significant portion, especially due to concerns about neglect and prenatal substance exposure. Adolescents aged 16 to 20 years make up roughly 20% of the population, facing unique challenges such as aging out of care.

Racial and Ethnic Composition

Racial and ethnic disparities persist in foster care placements. In 2023, African American and Native American children remain disproportionately represented compared to their share in the general population. Hispanic children show increasing representation, reflecting broader demographic shifts in the U.S. These disparities highlight systemic issues that require targeted policy responses and culturally competent services.

Gender Breakdown

Gender distribution in foster care is relatively balanced, with a slight majority of children being male. Boys represent approximately 52% of the foster care population, while girls account for 48%. Gender-specific needs, particularly for older youth, play a role in placement and service decisions.

Types of Foster Care Placements

Foster care placements vary widely depending on the child's needs, family circumstances, and available resources. Placement stability is a crucial factor affecting the well-being and development of children in care. The 2023 data provide an overview of the most common placement types and trends in placement stability.

Family Foster Homes

Family foster homes represent the largest category of placements, housing about 60% of children in care. These homes provide a family-like environment and are preferred for promoting normalcy and stability. Foster parents receive training and support to meet the diverse needs of children placed with them.

Relative or Kinship Care

Kinship care placements have increased steadily, now accounting for nearly 30% of foster care placements. Placing children with relatives helps maintain family connections and cultural ties, which can improve outcomes. However, kinship caregivers often need additional financial and service support to address the challenges they face.

Group Homes and Institutions

Group homes and institutional settings are used less frequently, comprising about 10% of placements. These settings serve children with more intensive behavioral or medical needs that cannot be met in family settings. Efforts continue to reduce reliance on these placements due to concerns about stability and developmental impacts.

- Family foster care: ~60%
- Kinship care: ~30%
- Group homes/institutions: ~10%

Foster Care Entry and Exit Rates

Tracking entry and exit rates in foster care reveals the flow of children through the system and informs efforts to improve permanency and reduce disruptions. The 2023 statistics demonstrate trends in how many children enter care, the reasons for entry, and how many exit through reunification, adoption, or aging out.

Entry into Foster Care

In 2023, approximately 250,000 children entered foster care nationwide. The primary reasons for entry remain abuse and neglect, with neglect accounting for nearly two-thirds of cases. Substance abuse by parents, particularly opioid use, continues to be a leading factor contributing to removals. Child welfare agencies focus on prevention and early intervention to reduce the number of children needing foster care.

Exit from Foster Care

Exits from foster care occur through reunification with birth families, adoption, guardianship, or aging out. In 2023, reunification remained the most common exit pathway, representing about 50% of exits. Adoption accounted for roughly 25%, with guardianship and other permanency options making up the remainder. Unfortunately, approximately 5% of youth aged out of care without permanent families, facing increased risks as they transition to adulthood.

Permanency Outcomes and Adoption Statistics

Permanency planning is a central goal of foster care, aiming to provide children with stable, lifelong family connections. The foster care statistics for 2023 highlight progress and ongoing challenges in achieving permanency through reunification, adoption, or guardianship.

Reunification Rates

Reunification with birth families remains the preferred outcome and was achieved for about half of children exiting care in 2023. Extensive efforts are made to support families through services that address the issues leading to removal, such as substance abuse treatment and parenting programs. Timely reunification is critical for minimizing trauma and instability.

Adoption Trends

Adoptions from foster care have increased slightly in 2023, reaching approximately 55,000 finalized adoptions. Adoption provides a permanent family for children who cannot safely return to their birth families. Special focus has been placed on finding adoptive homes for older youth, sibling groups, and children with special needs.

Guardianship and Other Permanency Options

Legal guardianship has gained prominence as an alternative permanency option, particularly for kinship caregivers. It allows children to remain with relatives without terminating parental rights. Other forms of permanency include permanent foster care arrangements and subsidized custody, providing flexibility to meet children's diverse needs.

Challenges and Emerging Issues in Foster Care

Despite advances in foster care services, several challenges persist in 2023 that impact children, families, and the system as a whole. Understanding these issues is essential for guiding future policy and practice improvements.

Impact of the COVID-19 Pandemic

The COVID-19 pandemic created significant disruptions in foster care, including delays in court proceedings, reduced face-to-face visits, and challenges in recruitment and retention of foster families. Although conditions improved in 2023, some effects continue to influence case management and permanency timelines.

Mental Health and Behavioral Needs

An increasing proportion of children in foster care have complex mental health and behavioral challenges. Addressing these needs requires enhanced access to specialized services and trauma-informed care approaches. The foster care system is adapting by integrating mental health supports and training caregivers accordingly.

Disparities and Equity Concerns

Racial and ethnic disparities remain a critical concern, with minority children disproportionately represented in foster care and facing barriers to services and permanency. Efforts to promote equity include culturally responsive practices, bias training for professionals, and data-driven strategies to reduce disproportionality.

Supporting Youth Aging Out of Care

Youth who age out of foster care without permanent families confront increased risks of homelessness, unemployment, and poor health outcomes. Programs focused on education, employment, housing, and independent living skills are essential components of support systems for these young adults.

foster care statistics 2023: Foster Children, Rights and the Law Matthew Trail, 2025-03-31

This book discusses child wishes, rights and participation in the foster care system. Making decisions in a foster child's best interest is a widely used, but also widely criticized international legal doctrine. This work discusses the two major legal frameworks, best interest and normalcy, for which foster care decisions are made and how those frameworks might shape how child welfare professionals view and interpret children's rights and participation. Normalcy, the idea that decisions should promote a "normal" life, is a separate legal doctrine which can be in conflict with best interest determinations. However, the concept of normalcy is also theoretically built into best interest decisions and therefore also plays a role in most child welfare systems. Mixing both empirical legal and child welfare research, the book demonstrates the ways in which risk aversion and fear drive best interest decision-making to the detriment of both practitioners and the children they aim to serve. It argues that a children's rights framework starting with normalcy is a better tool for promoting child participation and centering the child within the dependency process. The book will be of interest to academics, researchers and policymakers working in the areas of children's rights law, child welfare and international human rights law.

foster care statistics 2023: Children's Human Rights in the USA Yvonne Vissing, 2023-07-19 This book critically examines why a human rights framework would improve the wellbeing and status of young people. It explores children's rights to provision, protection, and participation from human rights and clinical sociological perspectives, and from historical to contemporary events. It discusses how different ideologies have shaped the way we view children and their place in society, and how, despite the rhetoric of children's protection, people under 18 years of age experience more poverty, violence, and oppression than other group in society. The book points to the fact that the USA is the only member of the United Nations not to ratify a children's human rights treaty; and the impact of this decision finds US children less healthy and less safe than children in other developed countries. It shows how a rights-respecting framework could be created to improve the lives of our youngest citizens – and the future of democracy. Authored by a renowned clinical sociologist and international human rights scholar, this book is of interest to researchers, students, social workers and policymakers working in the area of children's wellbeing and human rights.

foster care statistics 2023: Thrive Lisa M. Lawson, 2025-09-16 A bold new argument for harnessing brain science to help young people realize their full potential, from the noted business and foundation leader “In the last decade, a growing body of longitudinal neuroimaging research has demonstrated that adolescence is a period of continued brain growth and change, challenging longstanding assumptions that the brain was largely finished maturing by puberty.” —National Institutes of Health Breakthroughs in adolescent brain science have made it clear that young people need stable relationships, meaningful opportunities and strong support to become thriving adults. Yet far too many grow up without access to these essentials. Whether it's a young person trying to finish school and secure their first job, navigating the trauma of losing loved ones to violence or seeking connection after being placed in foster care, their experiences reveal how deeply our public systems are falling short—and how urgently we must act. A major new book for parents, local leaders, and policymakers alike, Thrive argues that how we understand and address the unequal experiences of adolescence holds the key to ensuring that all children have an equal chance of becoming successful adults. Drawing on her deep experience working in business and alongside youth, nonprofit and public system leaders as head of the Annie E. Casey Foundation, author Lisa M. Lawson offers a powerful and accessible look at what the science of adolescent development tells us—and what it demands of us. With clarity and purpose, she reveals how our policies and practices too often fail young people, and how we can do better by creating the connections, opportunities and support they need to reach their full potential. Arguing that we all have a shared stake in helping young people navigate the road to adulthood, Lawson lays out the ways that public systems, nonprofits, businesses and families can draw lessons from science—and take steps to help all young people thrive.

foster care statistics 2023: The Mental Health Clinician's Handbook for Abortion Care Julie Bindeman, 2024-08-07 Over the span of history, not all pregnancies were met with welcome and anticipation. As it continues today, an unwanted pregnancy can be seen in many different lights: an inconvenience, a crisis or a turning point. From June 1973 up until June of 2022, people in the United States capable of becoming pregnant could (to varying degrees) access healthcare that would end an unwelcome pregnancy. Now that this right has been gutted, the consequences are far-reaching and ever-unfolding. In clinician offices, the issue of abortion might seem remote based upon the population being seen. However, this issue impacts those long past reproductive age and is an important event that most therapists are woefully unprepared to deal with should it come up. With abortion in the news, previous experiences of abortion can come up as memories for clients past their reproductive years or with younger clients, an inability and fear to stop an unwanted pregnancy. As clinicians are human, we come to this issue with our own moral, religious and experiential baggage that might blind us as how to best support our clients. This book is an important addition to the scant amount of literature available for clinicians that might unexpectedly be faced with a client that is struggling with an abortion decision or access. The most recent book was published over five years ago under a completely different legislative landscape. In addition to assisting clinicians in client care, this book will also speak to potential legal risks to clinicians about abortion help.

foster care statistics 2023: Domestic Violence Death Reviews and Femicide Desmond Ellis, 2025-03-18 Hundreds of Domestic Violence Death Review committees, teams, and panels are operating in the United States, Canada and the United Kingdom. At the same time, thousands of women are being injured physically, emotionally, and cognitively, and a smaller number are being killed, by their male intimate partners. Femicides represent the tip of the iceberg for non-fatal and fatal injuries inflicted on intimate female partners, and taken together, they constitute an epidemic. This book investigates attempts made by Domestic Violence Death Reviews (DVDRs) in three different countries to end the epidemic by making recommendations to community-based organizations and agencies, such as women's shelters, substance abuse treatment agencies, and police forces. Thousands of recommendations have been made since these reviews were first created in 1994, but why have they not decreased the rates of femicide? This book answers this question, describes steps DVDRs can take to increase their fitness for preventing femicide in communities, and also how establishing a DVDR in an indigenous First Nation in Canada can achieve the same end. Readers who are not familiar with DVDRs will learn about similarities and differences in how they operate in three different countries, and why one of them—the Domestic Homicide Review in the United Kingdom—is identified as the model worth replicating in Canada and the United States.

foster care statistics 2023: Child Welfare and Rights Kerry O'Halloran, 2024-12-31 This book focuses on the role and content of the principle of the welfare interests of the child, considers the extent to which the principle has changed following its varied elevation by the introduction of paramountcy and reviews the distinction between welfare interests and rights. Providing an updated record of developments in the framework of relevant international law, the book assesses the contemporary relevance of established and emerging themes in the flow of cases dealing with the welfare interests and rights of children in England, Wales, Ireland, the U.S., Canada, Australia, New Zealand, France and Germany. By identifying and analysing the functions of the principle in hybrid proceedings (including adoption from state care and commercial surrogacy) the book completes the analysis of the law relating to children in public (care and protection) and in private (divorce, custody, etc.) family law as a whole, revealing characteristic jurisdictional differences and facilitating a comparative assessment of their significance. By examining the international framework of legislation and related caselaw it identifies and assesses unfolding themes in the law relating to children. In addition to a digest of international cases and legislation that identifies and tracks the role of this principle in civil and criminal law, lawyers, academics and other researchers will find a wealth of information on how it has evolved to reflect corresponding changes in society.

foster care statistics 2023: When We Walk By Kevin F. Adler, Donald W. Burnes, 2023-11-07 How to end homelessness in America: a must-read guide to understanding housing instability, supporting our unhoused neighbors, and reclaiming our humanity. A deeply humanizing analysis that will change the way you think about poverty and homelessness—for the socially engaged reader of Isabel Wilkerson's Caste and Matthew Desmond's Evicted. Think about the last time that you saw or interacted with an unhoused person. What did you do? What did you say? Did you offer money or a smile, or did you avert your gaze? When We Walk By takes an urgent look at homelessness in America, showing us what we lose—in ourselves and as a society—when we choose to walk past and ignore our neighbors in shelters, insecure housing, or on the streets. And it brilliantly shows what we stand to gain when we embrace our humanity and move toward evidence-based people-first, community-driven solutions, offering social analysis, economic and political histories, and the real stories of unhoused people. Authors Kevin F. Adler and Donald W. Burnes, with Amanda Banh and Andrijana Bilbija, recast chronic homelessness in the U.S. as a byproduct of twin crises: our social services systems are failing, and so is our humanity. Readers will learn: Why our brains have been trained to overlook our unhoused neighbors The social, economic, and political forces that shape myths like “all homeless people are addicts” and “they’d have a house if they got a job” What conservative economics gets wrong about housing insecurity What relational poverty is, and how to shift away from “us versus them” thinking That for many Americans, housing insecurity is just one missed paycheck away Who “the homeless” really are—and why that might surprise you What you can do to help, starting today A necessary, deeply humanizing read that goes beyond theory and policy analysis to offer engaged solutions with compassion and heart, When We Walk By is a must-read for anyone who cares about homelessness, housing solutions, and their own humanity.

foster care statistics 2023: Psycho-Legal Concepts for Parenting in Child Custody and Child Protection Vol. 1 Don Tustin, 2024-11-15 This book provides an overview of changes in legislation in Australia concerning both family law and child protection law. The topic is important as the Australian Government has identified that the rate of mental disorder in some cohorts of children is high and rising. These cohorts of children live in families where they are vulnerable because they are exposed to risk factors that can be changed by a coordinated effort from parents, therapists, and lawyers. The aim of the book is to identify psycho-legal concepts that need to be understood by professionals who work in the fields of child custody and child protection, and to bring these concepts together to improve coordination between the two fields of practice. The purpose of the book is to be a practice manual for professionals from the disciplines of law, social work, and psychologists who work in specialized legal roles dealing with families where children are vulnerable to developing mental health difficulties. Volume 1 of the book provides a perspective from a mental health clinician about concepts and principles that arise in Australian family-oriented courts, and that need to be shared between disciplines. This book proposes that some concepts be identified as psycho-legal as the concepts need to be shared between disciplines who work with court-involved families. The book also proposes that psycho-legal concepts be shared between the jurisdictions of child custody and child protection. In this book, proposals are made to improve collaboration between disciplines and to maximize the best interests of children.

foster care statistics 2023: The 50/50 Solution Emma Johnson, 2024-03-26 There is one proven method for happier kids, more involved dads, and less stressed-out moms after divorce—50/50 custody It's hard for everyone when parents split up—but the end of living together doesn't need to mean the end of a functional family. Part of the reason divorces are so traumatic for the kids involved is because of our child custody system, which truly sets everyone up for failure. Throughout the country, the default arrangement is for Mom to get majority time with the kids (and most of the responsibility of caring for them), for Dad to become an occasional visitor (and perhaps saddled with massive child support payments), and for the kids to lose the stability, structure and confidence of knowing they have two equally committed, loving parents. But it doesn't have to be this way! In The 50/50 Solution, creator of the Wealthy Single Mommy community Emma Johnson showcases the robust research proving that, in the vast majority of cases, equal timesharing is the best outcome for everyone in a family where the adults no longer live together. The 50/50 Solution will show you that equal parenting time leads to: Better physical, emotional, and mental health for children of divorce Higher career earnings for single mothers Fathers who are more engaged and whose rights as parents are preserved Far less parental and legal conflict A progressive, forward-thinking cultural norm that promotes gender and racial equality for all families, regardless of their configuration A few states have already adopted 50/50 custody as the default arrangement, and several more are poised to follow. Equal parenting time is the custody framework of the future, and The 50/50 Solution shows readers how it helps our families and communities thrive.
