History and Origin of the IHS Symbol

The IHS symbol is one of the most recognizable emblems associated with the Society of Jesus. Its origin dates back centuries and is deeply rooted in Christian iconography. The letters IHS are a Christogram derived from the first three letters of Jesus' name in Greek: iota (I), eta (H), and sigma (Σ). Over time, this abbreviation was Latinized to IHS, becoming a sacred monogram symbolizing Jesus Christ.

Early Usage and Adoption by the Jesuits

The IHS symbol was widely used in medieval Christian art and manuscripts before it was adopted by the Jesuits.
