Unanswered Required Fields

Many assignments in McGraw Hill Connect include mandatory questions or fields that must be answered for the submission to be considered complete. If any required section is left blank or partially answered, the system flags the answer as incomplete.

Some questions consist of multiple parts that must all be answered to complete the response. Submitting only a portion of these multi-part questions will trigger the incomplete answer notification.

Technical Glitches During Submission

Occasionally, technical issues such as browser incompatibility, internet connectivity problems, or platform bugs can interfere with the full transmission of answers, resulting in incomplete submissions.
