why the hell are you here teacher netflix: That Will Never Work Marc Randolph, 2019-09-17 In the tradition of Phil Knight's Shoe Dog comes the incredible untold story of how Netflix went from concept to company-all revealed by co-founder and first CEO Marc Randolph. Once upon a time, brick-and-mortar video stores were king. Late fees were ubiquitous, video-streaming unheard of, and widespread DVD adoption seemed about as imminent as flying cars. Indeed, these were the widely accepted laws of the land in 1997, when Marc Randolph had an idea. It was a simple thought—leveraging the internet to rent movies—and was just one of many more and far worse proposals, like personalized baseball bats and a shampoo delivery service, that Randolph would pitch to his business partner, Reed Hastings, on their commute to work each morning. But Hastings was intrigued, and the pair—with Hastings as the primary investor and Randolph as the CEO—founded a company. Now with over 150 million subscribers, Netflix's triumph feels inevitable, but the twenty first century's most disruptive start up began with few believers and calamity at every turn. From having to pitch his own mother on being an early investor, to the motel conference room that served as a first office, to server crashes on launch day, to the now-infamous meeting when Netflix brass pitched Blockbuster to acquire them, Marc Randolph's transformational journey exemplifies how anyone with grit, gut instincts, and determination can change the world—even with an idea that many think will never work. What emerges, though, isn't just the inside story of one of the world's most iconic companies. Full of counter-intuitive concepts and written in binge-worthy prose, it answers some of our most fundamental questions about taking that leap of faith in business or in life: How do you begin? How do you weather disappointment and failure? How do you deal with success? What even is success? From idea generation to team building to knowing when it's time to let go, That Will Never Work is not only the ultimate follow-your-dreams parable, but also one of the most dramatic and insightful entrepreneurial stories of our time.

why the hell are you here teacher netflix: The Forbidden Body Douglas E. Cowan, 2022-05-17 Throughout history, the religious imagination has attempted to control nothing so much as our bodies: what they are and what they mean; what we do with them, with whom, and under what circumstances; how they may be displayed-or, more commonly, how they must be hidden. Religious belief and mandate affect how our bodies are used in ritual practice, as well as how we use them to identify and marginalize threatening religious Others. This book examines how horror culture treats religious bodies that have stepped (or been pushed) out of their 'proper' place. Unlike most books on religion and horror, This book explores the dark spaces where sex, sexual representation, and the sexual body come together with religious belief and scary stories. Because these intersections of sex, horror, and the religious imagination force us to question the nature of consensus reality, supernatural horror, especially as it concerns the body, often shows us the religious imagination at work in real time. It is important to note that the discussion in this book is not limited either to horror cinema or to popular fiction, but considers a wide range of material, including literary horror, weird fiction, graphic storytelling, visual arts, participative culture, and aspects of real-world religious fear. It is less concerned with horror as a genre (which is mainly a function of marketing) and more with the horror mode, a way of storytelling that finds expression across a number of genres, a variety of media, and even blurs the boundary between fiction and non-fiction. This expanded focus not only deepens the pool of potential examples, but invites a much broader readership in for a swim-- why the hell are you here teacher netflix: The Philosopher's Dog Martyn de Tours, 2025-08-03 There are books born from ideas. And others are born from emotion. But this one? This one springs from a wound that sings. It begins not with a plot, but with a pulse. A whisper in the twilight: the breath of a blackbird carrying the pain of ancestors across heather-strewn valleys. A joke told sideways by a narrator who knows too much. A question repeated by those too aware to let it die. A love confessed, ill-timed. A truth half-joked and fully felt. And always, somewhere beneath the dialogue and digression, a longing, ancient and untranslatable, for something real. In these pages, the reader will find no tidy plots or fixed ideologies. Instead, you'll encounter a series of provocations disguised as conversations, part Platonic dialogue, part dream sequence, part philosophical séance, where myth and modernity circle cautiously, and sometimes waltz. Bertxin gropes his way between revelation and romance; Adriana guides Kant through catastrophe with a scholar's eye and a prophet's pain. Coco bites. The narrator disappears, but returns with a smile and a warning. Together, they navigate a world where immoral intelligence masquerades as strategy, and where civilised barbarism is the silent order beneath the noise. They name the tragedies, Auschwitz, Verdun, Hiroshima, Palestine, Libya, not as aberrations, but as inevitable consequences of uncontrolled, unreflective reason. They are not anomalies. They are monuments built by hands that have forgotten how to tremble. And yet. This book is not without hope. Hope lives here, not cheaply, but stubbornly. It lives in the sacred sentimentality of the Celts, who do not scoff at tears but baptise them. It breathes in the word hiraeth, that uniquely Welsh ache for a place that may never have existed and yet somehow calls us home. It flickers in the arts, those strange flames that give light to our disoriented hearts, Pre-Raphaelite reveries, Patti Smith's howl, harp songs and chapel hymns that turn sorrow into shelter.
